[REDACTED] of the Physical Security Division, has for some period of time been rendering unheralded assistance to employees and prospective employees who are deaf and mute. He is proficient in the skill known as dactylology, which enables him to speak with mutes. In recognition of these unique contributions, he recently received a letter of commendation from the DCI.

CIA Headquarters continues to be a focal point of attention by U.S. and foreign news media. On 4 March a CBS news team followed Mr. James Angleton from his residence to Headquarters. The news media representatives were stopped at Gate 1. On 4 and 5 March German news teams came to Headquarters gates. They were not permitted entry, and their activities in the peripheral areas were monitored closely.

On 12 March a series of seminars were held in the auditorium for 156 Federal Protective Officers assigned to the Agency.

The Agency's Annual Occupational Safety and Health Report required under the provisions of the Occupational Safety and Health Act was prepared and submitted to the Secretary of Labor.

As part of the Agency's participation in the various aspects of the Federal Government's "Safety '76" Program, eleven presentations involving lectures, demonstrations and films were held for a total of 433 employees. This segment of the program emphasized personal awareness relative to safety and fire prevention.
